Jackson, Francis, 1789-1861; historian

To Rev. Samuel May Jr.

Boston. Mr. May's letter of May 18th was received.
Mr. (Alanson) St. Clair charged the writer with bringing a large delegation to the annual meeting in New York by getting the more prosperous delegates to pay the expenses of those who could not otherwise afford the trip. The writer claims that this is a regular procedure. The Liberator announced a public meeting at the Chardon St. Chapel for the purpose of persuading people to go.

of occasional instances of cruelty toward slaves, but had regarded them as unimportant and isolated incidents. Learned

To William Lloyd Garrison

«Danvers, (Mass.). "I send you some labored remarks of mine" for publication. Invites W.L.G. to address the inhabitants of Danvers. Rev. D. Wise claimed that W.L.G. had approved of certain statements made by «J. H. Noyes, and that later J. H. N. had argued in favor of "a promiscuous cohabitation of the sexes." Wise held that because W.L.G. had commented favorably on the earlier article, he therefore also approved of the later one.

“ ? ” The writer wishes the addressee to state William Adam's qualifications as the delegate of the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society to the World's Convention. The writer holds him qualified to plead the cause of the slave in British India because he lived twenty-one years in Bengal, as a missionary, editor, and "the East India Company's servant to ... report on the schools." Quotes at length Mr. Adam's statement about his attitude toward Anti-Slavery efforts in the United States, as expressed in a work now in the press.
